The "Healer" Schlatter had told like his patients.

To be a "hero" you don't need to go to war. Be a prize fighter.

If the sentiment grows, it will not be "fashionable" to show a dog's carcass in Barre next week.

New electric railroads in Vermont: Rutland to Poughkeepsie, Waterbury to Morristown, Barre to —.

Taft visited Taft in Taft and spoke in the Taft schoolhouse. That must have been almost monotonous.

Is it too much to ask that every one of Barre's 1000 hunters return safe and sound next week and with no record for slaughtering anybody else?

The Montpelier banks seem to have washed their hands of those Framingham, Mass., notes in good season; and they are to be congratulated.

Governor Prouty will be in deep water, but not over his head, during the next few days while attending the deep waterways convention at New Orleans.

Death had lost its sting for "Boss" McCarren of Brooklyn, who died this morning. "I'm glad it's all over. Good bye," he feebly exclaimed shortly before his death.

Richard Croker is timing his American visit in order to reach New York a few days before the municipal election there. Still he told the people that he was through with politics. This looks suspiciously as if he had changed his mind, the privilege of all men.

About the only Champlain celebration which did not come out "whole" last summer was Burlington's. It now appears as one after the other of the state and local committees make their report. But Burlington's celebration was considerably more pretentious than those of the smaller towns and required much more money.

United States Senator William J. Stone of Missouri has yet to prove that he has gained the greatest victory in his life which is to conquer himself. Not long since he punched a negro porter because he didn't like the negro's manners. Again this week he slapped a negro lackey in St. Louis for charging what he called an exorbitant price of one dollar to be carried to the station; a policeman interfered and said the charge was legal and "Gumshoe Bill" had to pay in order to get his satchel, which the lackey had seized. Pityful Bill Stone!

Coincident with the arrival of Mrs. Pankhurst from England comes the typical London scene of women being arrested for haranguing on the street and refusing to desist when violating the law. On the same day that Mrs. Pankhurst reached New York, three women were arrested in that city. Shall we see the disgraceful scenes of London repeated in our metropolis? Probably so, if the American women share the martyrdom spirit of Mrs. Pankhurst, who declared to her American interviewers that they should shed blood for the acquirement of "votes for women."

NEED TO HASTEN GRADE CROSSING ABOLISHMENT.

Frequent accidents in which teams were struck by trains indicate the crying need of abolishing grade crossings in the northeastern part of Vermont, although we suppose that the public service commission is pursuing its work there just the same as it is in other parts of the state. A fatality at Lyndonville earlier in the week because of a crossing at grade and another last night near Hardwick, which, fortunately, has not resulted fatally, should spur the work along there. This abolishing of grade crossings is one of the best material improvements that the "New Vermont" is experiencing, and the changes cannot be made any too soon.

REMARKABLE SUPPORT TO THE Y. M. C. A.

The remarkable progress of the campaign in Boston to raise half a million dollars for a new Y. M. C. A. building in that city is being watched with interest all over New England. Only a week has passed since the movement was started, but already one-half of the desired amount has been subscribed and the subscriptions are coming in to the amount of $20,000 each day, so that it seems reasonable to expect that the full amount will be secured in due season. The plan has been tried again and again in the cities all over the country, and tremendous sums have been raised to enable the furtherance of the splendid work which is being done by this organization.

If you want something to run around in, here are good and comfortable reliable shoes.

zation. Dollars have sprung from unexpected sources and have dropped with unlooked-for windfalls, showing the implicit confidence felt in the integrity of this great organization and the appreciation of the work which it is doing. The people of the cities where the movement has been tried have rallied unreservedly to the call for assistance almost without exception, and it is certain that the cities have been better off through the added influence which the Y. M. C. A. organization has been able to wield. A reputation is now going on in Boston, and it is practically assured already that before the Y. M. C. A. strikes for the last time the $500,000 will have been raised through the efforts of old and new friends of the movement.

CURRENT COMMENT

Perilous Prudery.

It is a happy omen for sounder physical and ethical conditions in New England that a meeting such as was held on Wednesday evening in this city to discuss the Hygiene of Sex, has been held, and that it enlisted such a group of speakers and attracted so large and representative an audience. Credit for the fact that society is now willing to discuss such grave matters publicly and before a mixed audience is due in part to modern science, in part to the rising ideals of preventive medicine and social diagnosis, and in part to the waning of a phase of Puritanism which was nothing short of perilous prudery in its attitude toward talk about matters of sex. Where ignorance spells physical, moral and spiritual deterioration, it is folly to be dumb.—Boston Herald.

A Notable Record.

The Morrisville News and Citizen has this editorial mention of one of the best known railroad men in Vermont: "Forty-three years in continuous service as a railroad conductor is the record of Charles Ranney, a popular conductor on the St. J. & L. C. R. R. Always courteous and pleasant, yet ever zealous for the railroad's best interests, Mr. Ranney has many friends all along the line who wish he might round out a good half century of service."

And it was Conductor Ranney who, in a railroad crash in which he was so desperately injured that his recovery was matter of a year, refused to allow the rescuing party to take him out of the wreck until every passenger had been taken out.—Burlington News.

Morrisville Mourns a Good Citizen.

Morrisville loses one of its best citizens in the death of Harvie M. Rich. As a business man his integrity was never in the least questioned, and his sterling character made him the friend and adviser of many. He cared little for public life, preferring to give his time and energy to his banking interests. Yet in spite of this, the attendance at his funeral last Saturday was of wide representation, made up of people who gathered to pay tribute to the memory of one whose character was above reproach. There are times when public life calls for general eulogies, but never before in this locality at least has there been such tributes from representative men as those given at the obsequies of this private citizen. Books are searched for heroes to which to direct the attention of young people, but here is a life right in our midst that may well be imitated by those who wish to live an honorable and upright life and win the respect and esteem of their fellowmen.—Morrisville News and Citizen.

Oleomargarine.

of reasonable doubt that oleomargarine is a clean and wholesome product which, if it were permitted to be colored, would help out the butter problem to a great extent in thousands and hundreds of thousands of families. Such is the influence of the eye upon the stomach, that few people can endure the pure white of the uncolored oleomargarine, and it is used to a comparatively small extent as compared with its merits and its possibilities. But the great advance in the price of butter must inevitably lead to an agitation for a change in the laws relating to substitutes. The dairy interests, which are now protesting so loudly against the levying of the oleomargarine laws, may as well realize early as late that they cannot permanently maintain legislation against the necessities of the people. A continued high level in the butter market, affecting as it does the table of every workman in the land, will prove to be a sure fever to lift the gates which now bar competition by the makers of substitutes. As between oleomargarine and nothing, the people will be sure to demand the former, and when they demand it, they will get it, notwithstanding all the pink-coloring oleomargarine laws in the country.—Manchester Union.

A Trade Dispute Amicably Settled.

Thirteen local unions have voted to ratify the terms of an agreement between the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' association, the executive board of the Foot and Shoe Workers' Union, and the officers of the W. L. Douglas Shoe company, by which the latter company will again adopt the union stamp and will start manufacturing their well known product again in Brockton.

The pacific settlement of the serious disagreement between this manufacturing company and the trades unions must be considered most beneficial to all concerned and the result is one which calls for congratulations to the parties who brought it about. It was the demand of the employees of the company for what they considered back pay due them which led the W. L. Douglas company to establish factories in several towns in Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts and to discontinue manufacturing in Brockton, and it is because the thirteen local trades unions have voted to waive their claims and to ratify the terms of this agreement that this company will soon begin manufacturing their lines in Brockton, the city where the W. L. Douglas shoe had always been produced until this trouble came.

The trouble as resulted rather disastrously to the employees of the shoe company living in Brockton, for by the removal of this large industry to other cities these men were thrown out of work or were obliged to move to other cities to continue in the employ of the company.

The W. L. Douglas shoes have always been made in Brockton. They are a product of this city and have done much to advertise it, and it is appropriate that the manufacture of this widely advertised line should continue to be made in the City of Shoes. The struggle we believe has not been entirely an industrial one, but had its political side, and taken altogether the solution of the problem is one which must be most satisfactory to all parties interested.—Boot and Shoe Recorder.
